

Teach social skills with fun and engaging board games.

Help children navigate through life with greater ease and success.

Great for ALL children, but developed for children on the autistic spectrum, Tourette, ADHD and other neurological disorders.

Proven effective with decades of hands-on testing.

Teach: Manners, Decision Making, Anti-bullying, Sharing, Respect, Responsibility, Integrity, Boundaries, Speaking up, Safety and more!

Players take turns reading a scenario from a card, discussing what they think is the appropriate response, option or action, and then advancing their pawn and collecting Dragon Tears along the way. Reading the cards out loud creates an opportunity to discuss how decision making and behaviors affect outcomes.

Through these classes, we realized that board games helped the kids in many ways: taking turns, winning and losing, sharing, communication, and more!

Me and My World™ Social Skills Teaching System

Social skills are a must in order to succeed in this world. Unfortunately, they do not come naturally to a significant segment of the population. The Joshua Center for Neurological Disorders determined that the key to helping these children succeed is giving them the tools needed for positive peer interaction. Joshua Center experts, which include teachers and school counselors, spent years developing and perfecting the Me and My World Social Skills Teaching System.
